

15 Minutes

Official Magazine of the Next 15 Minutes

May 17, 2005

Dress Up For Action

AEROMAX has the most official looking bunker gear for kids. Take the Jr. Fire Fighter Suit ($59.95). The bib overalls has pockets, knee patches, and adjustable suspenders. The coat has buckles, zipper, pockets, authentic gauntlet cuffs and reinforced elbow patches. The hard helmet is adjustable. Available in 6 sizes from 18 months to adult, in three colors – black, tan and blue.

Junior PET reviewer Johnathan tested this high quality outfit, and was the hit of the neighborhood firehouse where his daddy is a volunteer fireman.

Johnathan also tested the Jr. Executive Chef Suit ($54.95) to help mommy in the kitchen. It has a double-breasted and embroidered coat with pockets, and pants with waistband and rear pockets. The embroidered chef's hat is tall, to give the little one authority at the grill. There's even a cooking mitt with button attachment.

Aeromax has other well-crafted Get Real Gear to delight youngsters and propel them on imaginative journeys in the playground and creative play at home. These innovative playsuits include the Astronaut, Air Force Pilot, Ninja, Cowboy, Doctor, Police, Train Engineer, Champion Racing. Order or see more at www.aeromaxtoys.com.

THE American International Toy Fair, held every February at New York's Javits Center, really tests the reviewing skills of Johnathan, our young partner in the 15 Minutes Magazine Products Evaluation Team (PET). Although our Junior PET of almost three years of age is not allowed into the show, he can't wait for the products to arrive at the office so he can give us his opinion. Johnathan wisely defers to Grampa, the Senior PET, to evaluate games and gear for teens and adults.